THE SPECTATOR

A WEEKLY REVIEW OF INSURANCE

Subscription Price, $4.00 per Annum.

THE SPECTATOR is a live and progressive insurance journal, noted for its ungent and fearless discussion of all matters pertaining to the vast subject of insurance in every ranch. In the many years of its existence it has built up a reputation for fair and honest treatment f insurance matters that has made it invaluable to insurance men of every class, whether they be

MANAGERS OF COMPANIES OR AGENTS IN THE FIELD.

It contains the latest and freshest insurance news from every quarter, bright and sparkling correspondence from the principal insurance centers of the country, comments on current insurance events of the day, and able discussions on the principles of Life, Fire, Accident and Miscellaneous Insurance.

A most valuable feature of THE SPECTATOR is the presentation from time to time of carefully prepared and voluminous of the business of Life, Fire and Miscellaneous Insurance, usually in a comparative form, showing the business transactions and detailed experience of all companies for a series of years. These statistics are compiled by experts having no personal interest to serve, but are prepared solely for the purpose of analyzing the subject.

THE MOST EMINENT WRITERS

on Insurance in its various forms are contributors to its columns, and the aim of its proprietors is to present the science of the insurance systems in vogue without prejudice to any and in fairness to all. It is in this spirit that Fire, Life, Industrial, Accident and Employers' Liability, Natural Premium Life and Miscellaneous Insurance Companies, Associations and Societies are treated without fear or favor. It also gives the current news from different insurance centers each week, and each number is that are of interest to the profession at large. In short, it is the ambition of its proprietors to make THE SPECTATOR an invaluable journal to every person identified with the insurance interest in any capacity, and its unprecedented success is evidence that their efforts are appreciated.

Any business man entering the insurance profession as manager, agent or broker should address The Spectator Company for information regarding the various treatises and other instructive publications printed in the interest of the particular branches of insurance. Managers and general agents should see that their sub-agents are supplied with the various publications issued by it in behalf of insurance. The public interested in insurance from a fire, life or casualty standpoint should secure copies of the works of reference, containing reports on insurance companies, issued by it.

A complete Catalogue of insurance works will be sent to members of the insurance fraternity, or to any person, on receipt of ten cents to cover postage.

Attention is called to the condensed Catalogue of the insurance works of The Spectator Company presented on other pages of this issue.

MANUALS OF LIABILITY, WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION AND AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

MANUAL OF COMPENSATION AND LIABILITY INSURANCE—RULES AND RATES—the Basis Manual.—Hitherto, in preparing manuals of rates for workmen's compensation and liability insurance, the compilers have confined their labors to individual States. Now that nearly half of the States of the Union have enacted compensation laws it has been found feasible to compile a Basis Manual applicable to all States. The rates given therein are the basis rates for all classifications, while Differential Slips containing the multiplier to be used in arriving at the manual rate for particular States will be supplied as desired. Price, $1.50.

MANUAL OF LIABILITY INSURANCE.—Rules and Rates. Being basis rates for liability insurance in States having no compensation laws. Loose leaf form. Differential slips supplied as desired. Price, $1.50.

AUTOMOBILE MANUAL.—Companies and Agents can also be supplied with the Manual dealing with Automobile Liability Insurance, in four parts, as follows: Horse Power Ratings, 1912 to 1918 Models complete; Automobile Horse Power Ratings, Supplement 1919 Models; Rules for Writing Liability Property Damage and Collision Insurance, 1919; Differential Rate Sheets.

These Manuals are official and can be supplied in quantities to suit. Write for prices and further particulars.
